

Pasquale Pisapia, M.D., Ph.D., is Assistant Professor, Specialist in Anatomic Pathology at the University of Naples Federico II in Naples, Italy. His main research interest is in molecular pathology, with a particular focus on the development, validation and implementation of molecular techniques, especially NGS, in molecular predictive and prognostic biomarkers in different solid tumors (for example, NSCLC and CRC), on both tissue (histological or cytological) and liquid biopsy specimens.